

I am writing in support of Low Power broadcasting. The local LP broadcaster, WSCA, has been providing wonderful services. Our town has a lot of culture but a small population, and WSCA provides us with details on what is happening in town- from new art and music shows at the local theater to the local religious listings. Local musicians come on the air to play music that you wouldn't hear on larger stations. But it also provides a wonderful service by allowing for high school kids to enter into a supervised training program for on air broadcasting. In general, this station has strengthened our community. I wholeheartedly support the move to create more opportunities for this type of LP broadcasting!
